The presence of controversial statements—whether real or apparent—in DLI materials should not be construed as representing the opinions of the writers, the Defense Language Institute or the Department of Defense.

In DLI publications, the words "he," "him," and "his" denote both masculine and feminine genders. This statement does not apply to translations of foreign texts.

Unit 46. The K a t y ń Massacre

Katyn is a place in the Soviet Union where more than four thousand Polish soldiers were killed by the Soviet government during the Second World War. This massacre of defenseless prisoners is still a very sensitive issue in Polish-Soviet relations that has only recently been openly discussed. During his 1990 visit to the Soviet Union President Jaruzelski received some documents with the names of the Polish officers kept in Soviet camps from President Gorbachev.

Formerly, the Soviets claimed that the Nazis were responsible for the deaths of thousands of Poles in 1940. Recently, the Soviet government has admitted the crime was committed by the NKVD (People's Commissariat of Internal Affairs, former Soviet security police).

In this unit you will hear an interview with Colonel Kazimierz Sobczak, the head of the Military Historical Institute. The interview concentrates on the role of the Polish Armed Forces in looking for 'lost' Polish officers in the Soviet Union and in discovering the truth about the massacre.

Exercise 1 About 15,000 Polish officers were kept in three Soviet camps: Kozielsk, Starobielsk, and Ostashkov. Find Katyn and these three places on the map below and circle them.

Unit 47. The Ukraine

To help you work with this unit, some historical information on the Ukraine will be useful.

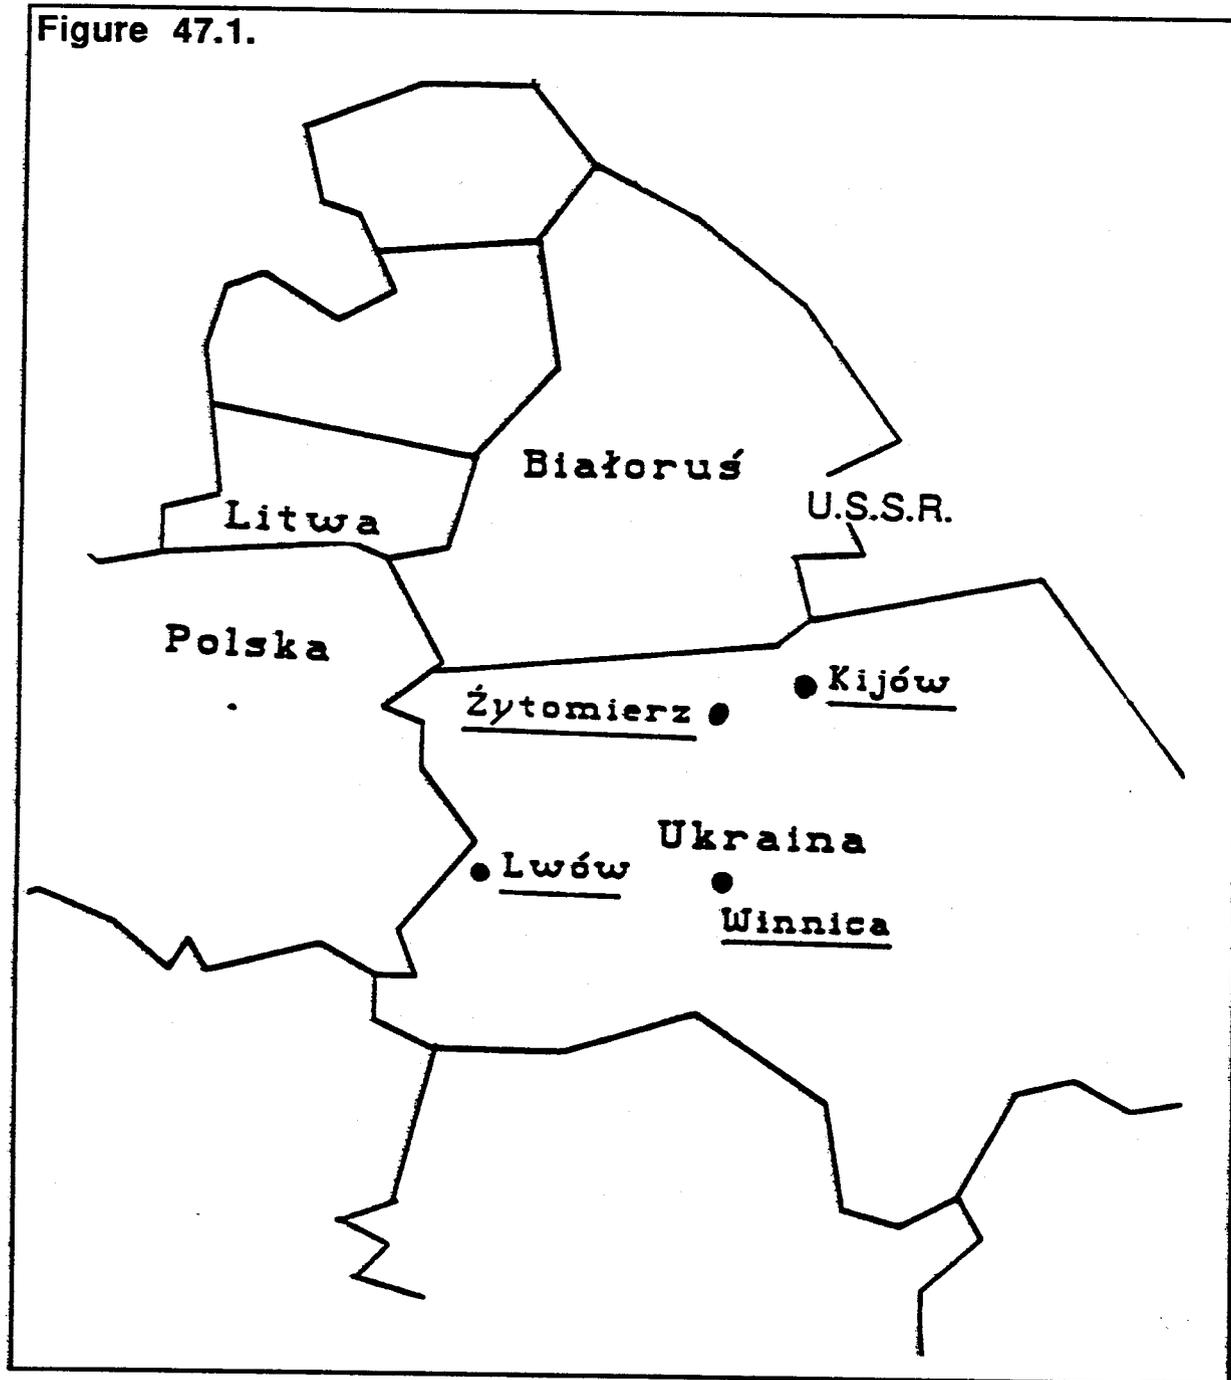

The protocols agreed on at Lublin in 1569 established the formal union of Poland and Lithuania under the Polish crown. As part of the agreement, the Lithuanians ceded the largest portion of the Ukraine to Poland. The Union of Lublin guaranteed the equality of the Greek Orthodox hierarchy with the Roman Catholic hierarchy. But at a synod in Brest in 1596, a majority of the Orthodox bishops recognized the supremacy of the pope while retaining for the Ukrainian church its traditional Byzantine liturgy and separate ecclesiastical jurisdiction. The largely Polonized — and increasingly Roman Catholic — aristocracy in the Ukraine supported the bishops in transforming the Ukrainian church into a Greek Catholic community, but the union with Rome was rejected by many of the lower clergy and much of the peasantry. Today the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church is still considered something of a center of Ukrainian nationalism.

The Ukraine's current population is 51.7 million, of which 74% is Ukrainian, 21% is Russian, and 1% is Jewish. It became a Soviet republic in 1922. Nationalist opposition in this largest non-Russian republic is led by Rukh, a coalition of Communists and non-Communists organized in September 1989. The group, which claims several hundred thousand members, is fighting for economic autonomy, political pluralism, and more freedom to use the Ukrainian language. Demonstrations calling for the resignation of party officials have been mounted in several cities. Much resentment centers on Moscow's mishandling of the 1987 Chernobyl nuclear disaster.

In this unit you will hear an interview with a Polish Consul to the Ukraine, an interview with the head of the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church and a news broadcast about the founding of a new independent Ukrainian movement.

Unit 48. The Kukliński Report

Martial law in Poland was introduced on December 13, 1981, as a result of Moscow's pressure to suppress Solidarity, the first independent trade union movement in the communist bloc. The movement came into existence in 1980 as a result of the Gdańsk agreements signed by the representatives of the Polish Communist Party (formerly known as Polish United Workers' Party) and the representatives of the Strike Committee led by Lech Wałęsa. Under pressure from Moscow, representatives of the Polish armed and security forces decided to use Polish forces to crush Solidarity.

The texts you are going to hear are parts of the so-called Kukliński report. Colonel Kukliński participated in the preparation for martial law and was a witness to all behind-the-scenes maneuvers. Two months before martial law was imposed, he defected to the West with some documents. These documents have become known as The Kukliński Report. The important figures in Polish political life at that time whose names you will hear in the texts in this unit were: General Wojciech Jaruzelski, Minister of Defense, Prime Minister and, after, Stanisław Kania's resignation from the post (October 18, 1981), First Secretary of the Polish United Workers' Party; Mirosław Milewski, replaced later by General Czesław Kiszczak, Minister of Internal Affairs; and General Florian Siwicki, present Minister of Defense, who was then Chief of the General Staff.

Unit 48. "The Kukliński Report"

Divide your class into small groups. Present the following situations to each of the groups and ask students to present suggestions for dealing with each situation.

"The Kukliński Report" discusses plans for dealing with unrest. Look at the following situations and suggest ways of dealing with the "unrest" you see there.

Situation A:

The cooks are doing a terrible job. The food is becoming worse by the day. Irritated and frustrated by the situation, a soldier got into a fight with one of the cooks. What do you suggest doing about this situation?

Unit 49. Namibia

Divide your class into pairs. Give student A role card A below, and student B role card B below.

He asks you about the country so you tell him about the hot dry weather, and the food which is quite good, although fresh vegetables and fruit are not always available. You describe the school dormitory where your unit is stationed and talk about the long hours when you have to patrol the streets of Windhoek. You say that you think the commander is OK, although you have not had much contact with him. You add that you find the local people friendly enough, but since you don't speak much English, you don't talk with them very much.
